LIGHTest Project

Trust is necessary in a very wide field of transactions

- Global solutions require global interoperability

Many trust-critical processes cross boundaries

- Global interoperability requires tools and rules

Trust must be anchored somehow

- A certificate or (public) key - for example to sign a trust list

Securing a global, multi-domain trust infrastructure is a major issue

- Biggest point of attack

LIGHTest tests a single anchor: a single global trust root

- Using the Domain Name System for a globally deployed system with a single trust root

Identity Eco-System Interoperability
